

Rights of Light: The Modern Law Fourth edition

Rights of light are a distinctive and complex branch of the law of easements, and this book offers practitioners specialist, targeted guidance on every aspect of the subject.

Written by a team of experts, namely Andrew Francis (Restrictive Covenants 5th edition, 2019 LexisNexis), Tom Weekes KC (Property Notices 3rd edition, 2021 LexisNexis), and Christopher Stoner KC, it also contains contributions from a rights of light surveyor on measuring and valuing loss of light (Andrew Cartmell of Point 2) and an insurer on insuring the risks posed by rights of light claims (Neil Redford, formerly of Stewart Title).

Drawing on their considerable expertise, the authors and contributors explain rights of light matters in a clear and practical way, making this the essential "one stop shop" whenever issues arise. Substantially rewritten and restructured since the 3rd edition, it covers everything practitioners need, from the acquisition and extinguishment of rights of light to unlawful interference and insurance considerations.

Rights of Light: The Modern Law is an invaluable reference book for legal advisors who specialize in property and planning work.

Publication date: October 2026
Price: ~~£139.99~~ £111.99

ORDER NOW:

Visit lexisnexis.co.uk/rol20off to order this title with a 20% discount, using the discount code 605977 at checkout.

The discount is valid until 31st December 2026.

LexisNexis®

© 2026 LexisNexis SA-1026-3585.